Satyajit Ray Memorial Lecture

Sudhir Mishra

Understanding Cinema in changing times of OTT

The world as we know it is always changing, at a much faster rate today than it did in the past. Within our world — the world of cinema — technology always helps to push the envelope forward. The emergence of OTT Platforms have relieved filmmakers from the pressures of the market. Serious Men (Netflix, 2020) has a Dalit protagonist at the core of the story and such a film would be impossible to make in the landscape of market driven box office cinema. Masters like Satyajit Ray have challenged conventions time and over to evoke an emotional response. Today, filmmakers around the world can delve into a search for a new language of cinema but the responsibilities on them have doubled. There is a growing level of intolerance throughout the world and filmmakers have the added responsibilities of portraying the realities of these times. Another new aspect in cinema of current times is the long-form storytelling style of a series, that gives the makers an opportunity to inspect characters at a much deeper level and create a new style of storytelling which is not limited to the confines of a pre-defined structure. A new era has been ushered in cinema for an audience who has now matured over a century.

About the Speaker

Sudhir Mishra is a three time national award winning filmmaker who is known for films like Haazaron Khwaishein Aisi (2005) and Dharavi (1992). He has made 14 films till date and was conferred the Chevalier of the Ordre des Arts et des Lettres by the French government in 2010. His latest film Serious Men (2020) for Netflix India, was nominated for the Emmys in 2021
