Synopsis : The few thousand kilometers that separate Patagonia to the South Pole is a fascinating and hypnotic journey for explorers. Some even speak of an addiction “the Antarctic bite”. The March of the Penguins director Luc Jacquet has been experiencing it for 30 years. This time, he comes back for a visually-striking trip, offering us with images what one cannot convey with words. Almost like a final journey to a vanishing continent and its inhabitants.

Director's Biography : Luc Jacquet (born 5 December 1967) is a French film director and screenwriter. He wrote and directed the film March of the Penguins, which won an Oscar for Best Documentary Feature in 2005 and received a nomination for the Writers Guild of America Award for Best Documentary Screenplay. He also directed The Fox And the Child. It was released in Britain and Ireland in slightly re-edited dubbed English-language version with narration by Kate Winslet, and was released in the United States on 29th February 2008. His 2015 film Ice and the Sky was selected to close the 2015 Cannes Film Festival.
