

Restored Classics

Country : United States of America (USA)

Enter The Dragon

Enter The Dragon

1973 / Colour / 102 minutes / English

Director : Robert Clouse

Producer : Fred Weintraub

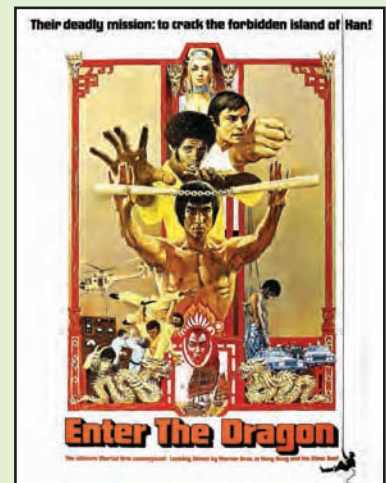

Cinematographer : Gilbert Hubbs

Editor : Kurt Hirschler, George Watters, Peter Cheung

Music : Lalo Schiffrin

Cast : Bruce Lee, John Saxon, Jim Kelly, Ahna Capri

Synopsis : This cinematic classic centres around a martial artist named Lee, who is recruited by British intelligence to participate in a martial arts tournament on a mysterious island owned by the reclusive Han (Shih Kien). The tournament serves as a cover for Han's criminal activities, including drug trafficking and slavery. Lee discovers the extent of Han's illicit operations and forms alliances with other martial artists. The film builds to a climactic confrontation between Lee and Han in the villain's fortress, where Lee seeks to avenge the death of his sister and put an end to Han's criminal empire. The final fight scene is iconic and showcases Bruce Lee's unparalleled martial arts skills.

Director's Biography : Robert Clouse born in 1928, was an American film director and producer, known primarily for his work in the action/adventure and martial arts genres. Clouse made his feature directorial debut in the year 1970, with Dreams of Glass, a love story between an Asian girl and white boy, starring John Denos and Caroline Barrett. He completed another film Darker Than Amber in the same year, which was released in theatres before Dreams of Glass.